

John Bembry has been an Accounting Coordinator in the Office of Student Financial Services at Florida State University for the past ten years. John is a graduate of FSU and holds both undergraduate and graduate degrees in education. John's responsibilities include, managing all cashiering, financial aid disbursements, refunds, accounts receivables, student accounts, and customer service needs for Student Financial Services. In addition, John has served a major role as departmental spokesperson for such FSU events as Freshman Orientation, Seminole Preview, and departmental workshops.

John currently serves as the Assistant Controller for Operations within SFS, where he continues to manage and direct the daily operations related to the collection of tuition and fees, as well as the disbursement of all university refunds and financial aid awards. Some of the major goals achieved at Student Financial Services during his career have been the emphasis of online cashiering through web payments, the continued automation of the delivery of student financial aid, and the creation of a student-centered customer service area.

As a former teacher and educator, John's greatest asset is his commitment to serving the needs of students and parents attending FSU. John is married to the former Michelle Smith and they have two children: Tyler (14) and Lindsey (11).
